Developing Leaders

Working Parents

Sope is a husband, father, international professional coach and facilitator who works with executives and entrepreneurs across a broad cross-section of industries.

Sope designs and runs leadership development programmes focused on improving inclusion and psychological safety as well as dealing with complexity.

Sope spent over 15 years working in senior corporate roles in automotive, tech, finance and manufacturing sectors leading time in the UK and Europe. He understands very well the challenges of operating in a complex, fast-paced and ever-changing environment. His corporate experience helps him to get to the root of the problem facing his clients and to create a human centred solution.

Background

Sope believes that leadership is not about position or title but about influence which comes through building relationships. He feels clients are positioned to grow their influence when they engage in coaching which provides a space for them to learn and understand who they are and how they impact their colleagues and culture.

Drawing on a results-driven, hands-on approach, Sope walks alongside his clients enabling them to step outside of their comfort zone, stop procrastinating and take the necessary steps to achieve transformation, lead authentically and positively influence those around them. Sope equips his clients with the right tools to shift their mindset and put systems in place to create a solid foundation they can build on.
